About the Game

This session will review recent economic and capital markets developments. We will discuss how local government investments may be affected by economic events such as changing inflation, geopolitical events, and the actions of the Federal Reserve. In a fun, interactive game, we will review a broad spectrum of terms and topics that finance and treasury management professionals are dealing with on a daily basis. Make sure you come ready to play!

When you complete this session, you should be able to:

- List two current and long-term economic trends,
- Identify and discuss the three key economic indicators that impact interest rates
- Recognize and discuss how current events may factor into the management of short-term fixed-income portfolios
